Early Statehood: Telling Our Story

Carnegie Visual Arts Center, Decatur

July 17-21, 2017

Britt Lovelace, Decatur City Schools

John Kvach, University of Alabama at Huntsville

This institute will spin oral, local, and early Alabama history into one cohesive story. Learn how the past helps us understand the present by participating in active learning workshops lead by John Kvach, Professor of History at University of Alabama at Huntsville, and other guest historians. Come prepared for guided walks through Decatur and Huntsville, with visits of the Old State Bank, the Decatur Archives, Constitution Village, Carnegie Library, and Burritt Museum. Participants will leave ready to encourage their own students to be active learners, oral historians, and productive citizens of Alabama whose knowledge of our state's first 200 years will prepare them to shape the next 200.
